Review on «When should agents explore?»

The project idea is clear, and well defined. The report structure is very informative, the related work and current state of the progress in the field of RL is well described.

But it would be good to better describe the goals of the project in the very beginning of Introduction or abstract.

The qualitative and quantitate results are presented and explained. The research sounds promising, while the scope of explored RL tasks looks limited, however it might be the question of resources.

The code presented, clear and fairly reproducible, read.me is also quite good.
